July to September 2008

Editorial

We are pleased to present to you the second issue of CBCB Newsletter on time. It's a means to communicate with you the activities of CBCB and the Episcopal Commissions. You are well aware of the fact that the month of June was very important for the whole Church in Bangladesh as the Archbishop and Bishops had been to Rome for Ad limina Apostolorum. As a successor of the Apostles, every bishop goes on pilgrimage to the thresholds of the Apostles in Rome to visit the Holy Father. This quinquennial visit is also an occasion to report to the Holy See departments about the progress of the diocese. Usually the bishops make this pilgrimage as Episcopal conference. This visit takes place after every five years. For one reason or another, this time it took place after seven years. For three Bishops it was a new experience as they participated in the Ad limina for the first time after their consecrations. It's a good occasion to express the solidarity with the Universal Church. While meeting the Bishops together, the Holy Father Benedict XVI stressed the need for proclamation of the Good News in Bangladesh with goodness, simplicity and creativity in charity. Pope Benedict XVI also reminded the Bishops that the personal integrity and holiness are the essential components of a Bishop's witness. At the same time the Pope reminded the Catholics to foster peace and unity. As part of the program the Bishops visited various dicasteries of Vatican and apprised about the dioceses and activities of the Catholic Church in Bangladesh.

Ad Limina Visit – 2008

As part of their program the bishops left for Rome to attend the Ad limina visit on June 6. During that time they visited the following offices: Pontifical Commission for Justice and Peace, Pontifical Commission for Migrants and Itinerant People, Secretariat of State, Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples (Propaganda Fide), Congregation for Catholic Education, Apostolic Penitentiary, Supreme Tribunal of the Apostolic Signatura, Pontifical Council "Cor Unum", Pontifical Council for Pastoral Assistance to Health Care Workers, Pontifical Council for Inter-religious Dialogue, Pontifical Council for Culture, Congregation for Divine Worship and Discipline of the Sacraments, Congregation for the Institutes of Consecrated Life and Societies of Apostolic Life, Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity, Pontifical Council for the Family. After the Ad limina visit, the bishops visited some parts of Italy before arriving in Bangladesh in July.

Catholics in Bangladesh: Foster Unity and Peace

The Bishops met the Holy Father Pope Benedict XVI on June 12 in Vatican. His Holiness addressed the prelates from the Bangladeshi bishops that "Personal integrity and holiness of life are essential components of a bishop's witness." He reminded that "Bishops are called to be patient, mild and gentle in the spirit of the beatitudes. In this way they lead others to see all human realities in the light of the Kingdom of Heaven.... Many of your people suffer from poverty, isolation or discrimination, and they look to you for spiritual guidance that will lead them to recognize in faith, and to experience in anticipation, that they are truly blessed by God.”

The Pope then went on to examine “the effective transmission of the deposit of faith,” highlighting the importance of ensuring that “lay catechists are sufficient in number, well prepared and given due recognition by the faithful...As you know from your own pastoral experience, catechists play an integral role in preparing lay people to receive the Sacraments. This is especially true in the increasingly important work of preparing young men and women to recognize the Sacrament of Matrimony as a life-long covenant of faithful love and as a path to holiness.

“I have often mentioned”, he added, ‘my concern regarding the difficulty modern men and women have in making lifelong commitment. There is an urgent need on the part of all Christians reassert the joy of total self-giving in response to the radical call of the Gospel. Once clear sign of this radical commitment is seen in the many vocations to the priesthood and the consecrated life the Church in your country is currently experiencing.”

“The Church is Catholic: a community embracing peoples of all races and languages, and not limited to any one culture or particular social, economic or political system... This gives her a connatural ability to foster unity and peace.

“My dear brothers’, he told the Bangladeshi prelates, “you have much to offer the nation. In your love for your country you inspire tolerance, moderation and understanding. By encouraging people who share important values to co-operate for the common good, you help to consolidate your country’s stability and to maintain it for the future. These efforts, however subtle, give effective support to the majority of your fellow citizens who uphold the country’s noble tradition of mutual respect, tolerance and social harmony.”

Pope Benedict then turned his attention to inter-religious dialogue, which he described as an “essential component of the Church’s mission ‘ad gentes’. Such dialogue, “based on mutual respect and truth, cannot fail to have a positive influence on the social climate of your country. The delicacy of this task requires thorough preparation of clergy and lay people, first of all by offering them a deeper knowledge of their own faith and then by helping them to grow in their understanding of Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism and the other religions present in your region.”

Finally, the Holy Father mentioned the forthcoming Pauline year, “which will be for the whole Church a renewed invitation with unfailing courage the Good News of Christ Jesus... I am aware of the difficulties of this mission entrusted to you. Like the first Christians, you live as a small community among a large non-Christian population. Your presence is a sign that the preaching of the Gospel, which began in Jerusalem and Judea, continues to spread to the ends of the earth in accordance with the universal destination the Lord willed for it.” (Source: Vatican Information Service).
